

2012 Fox Cities Book Festival

Project Girl:

Talking Self-Esteem, Body Image & UnMediafying Your Life!

Tuesday, April 17

7:00 p.m. No cost for this special event

Appleton North High School Auditorium

Kelly Parks Snider is the co-founder of Project Girl and author of the new book, Zilly. Though she specializes in exploring contemporary social issues through art, what she's really coming to Appleton to do is shake things up. She wants girls to understand that it's okay to be who they are... not the picture the media paints for them. Her energetic and impactful presentation at Appleton North High School will challenge attendees to think deeper about the effects the media has on our lives and the lives of adolescent girls. Parks Snider has talked with thousands of middle school and high school girls across the country, as well as parents and teachers, and will share what she's learned as she's conducted her advocacy for young girls, teens and young women.

FREE and open to the public. No registration required. Please come and participate.

Kelly Parks Snider's Fox Cities appearances are supported by a community collaboration of the Fox Cities Book Festival and the Women's Fund for the Fox Valley Region.
